

I enjoy watching TV &/or listening to the radio with my young children, just as my parents did with us when we were growing up. I oppose any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves, even if brief or "fleeting."

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Relaxing this current policy would not serve the public interest and I urge the FCC to reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcast of expletives and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.

Please consider these concerns & make your decision wisely. A lot of children now are "babysat" by broadcast media, and you begin a very slippery slope by relaxing the current standards that are in place.
