

To whom it may concern:

I understand there is discussion about dropping the ban of the the f-word and s-word on broadcast television and the permitting of "non-sexual" full frontal female nudity. I oppose those changes. Our culture needs does not need to become any cruder. People, especially children, imitate what they hear and see, and they do not need those poor examples. I am a public school teacher and see the effect of profane pop culture on my students. There needs to be some safe place in the media where people do not have to be subjected to foul language and nudity.

Craig Comess