

I am against any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast cursing and nudity on the public airwaves no matter how brief or fleeting.

Our children do not need to be subjected to bad language and nudity on the television and the radio. These can be saved for the movies where the parent can decide whether or not the child should see it. Making it the norm would be detrimental to our children and to society as a whole. How can we teach children not to speak and act in should crude ways if it is going to be acceptable on our radio and television stations? Where are our morals and values? Please leave it alone, for all our sakes.
