

The FCC should keep the present decency standards intact. It will not serve the public interest to allow presently prohibited foul language and nudity, especially during the hours when children are likely to be watching, but during the other hours as well.