

Indecency adds nothing to a storyline. If a writer cannot come up with a substitute expression, he or she is not much of a creative artist.

I have a 3 and 5 year old. There are TVs in airports, hospitals, schools, restaurants, hotels and so many other very PUBLIC locations. It is already nearly impossible to keep my kids from learning and using phrases to demean, objectify, verbally abuse, hurt or bully other human beings under the current regulations.

Early exposure to indecency does nothing to help public education, it does nothing to encourage responsible healthcare and relationships, and it does nothing to create a more civil society. Indecency does not serve the public in any possible way.

If there are adults who choose to expose their children to indecent materials, there are many PRIVATE companies on the PRIVATE internet, rather than using PUBLIC methods of communication paid for through taxpayers.

I oppose any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves, even if brief or "fleeting." I also oppose indecency in commercials, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Please allow me to watch TV with my kids. The FCC must reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcast of expletives and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.
