

I support changes to federal "decency" standards to include non-sexual nudity and use of so-called swear words. I am a father of two girls, aged 8 and 4, and am trying to raise them to understand that they are equal to males. As long as the female breast is taboo but the male breast can be nude in advertising and television shows, there is no equality. I also feel that so-called swear words are no longer taboo and should be treated the same as any other words of the English language as long as they are not being used in a sexually explicit manner.
