

I oppose further relaxing of FCC cursing and nudity standards as publicized to be in consideration at this time. While personally, I have gladly stopped watching network TV because of its present level of indecency, especially in social interactions, my opinion is that its influence on children is already too degrading in its influence and by further descension into antisocial behavior as a "normal" life-style it will be very detrimental to a lawful society. We are still a "lawful society" are we not? Maybe not...
