

I oppose any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves, even if brief or "fleeting." I further believe that escalating violence across the nation in recent days and years is a DIRECT result of ALREADY-loosened FCC standards which regulate the media's influence over our children and adults, and so cause them to DUPLICATE the violence they see on TV and in movies, etc., in real life. I believe that if we want our society across America to be more peaceful with one another, we will CENSOR some of the things which lead to division among our population! "Disturbing the Peace" is a criminal charge - does the FCC want to promote division and rowdiness or do they want to promote an atmosphere devoid of publicized violence and cursing in which people may flourish?
