

Censorship is pointless and stupid. Bleeping expletives and blurring body parts does nothing to prevent a child from knowing what's being censored. In fact, censorship only gives more power and attention to "curse words," and the censorship of nudity only promotes a long outdated and terrible tradition of shaming the human body. We have no good reason to hide women's nipples and human genitalia from children, and it's nothing short of absurd to continue our current practice of television and radio censorship.

We are mature enough of a civilization in the year 2013 to end these pointless practices.
