

I recently heard that the FCC would be dropping the ban on the "S" word, "F" word, and frontal female nudity on TV. I want to voice my opinion that doing so would be detrimental to individuals, families, and the American society.

Pornography has a strong link with rape and sexual assault, and allowing nudity on public television will indirectly cause irrevocable harm to any untold number of innocent people. We expect the President of the United States to use clean language in his communication. Why should we expect less of each other? What good would come from allowing more foul language and pornography on public and commercial television? None.

I hope you use great judgment in your decision; please don't hurt my country and my society.
