

I was reading the minutes to the court proceedings and subsequent FCC judgment against a Mountain Energy company claiming to be using radar for ecology surveilling? The platform was the abuse or use of radiating devices.

My question to the FCC is this:

Did this case set a new prescedent in the regulation of passive radar which has been deregulated for many years?

My next question is whether Spectral Enforcement can intervene and resolve an issue with two Male neighbors who are using a mini radar dish as a remote tool for hacking into tv speakers and Sonar imaging to scan for items worthy of black market resale value.nd telemetrygptrackias