

I would greatly prefer a model for broadcast regulation like that in Britain where language and nudity are allowed at any time past 9PM. Network television is more or less completely irrelevant in the age of HBO/Showtime/Netflix without any such changes. I shouldn't have to pay a premium for intelligent, adult programming that's so readily available in other countries.