

I strongly oppose any changes to the current FCC indecency standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity to the public, even if it is brief.

Recently on the FX channel, my husband and I started watching a new show called the Americans. It was so good, until there was nudity. I was so embarrassed and embarrassed for my husband. We stopped watching the show completely. I would have been ashamed of myself if my kids had seen this terrible act of classlessness.

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Changing the current policy would not serve the public interest and I plead with the FCC to reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcasts of expletive language and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.

What is wrong with the world when we cannot watch television...good wholesome television. Let us have what is left of family friendly television.
