

I am not in favor of the FCC relaxing or lowering decency standards currently in place. I request for myself and on the behalf of my family that current standards be enforced without modification that would allow more use of profanity and nudity. It is unfortunate that so many movies and print media have already gone the course of allowing reduced standards of proper language and modesty, as well as less regulated media sources such as via cable or satellite television. Families are suffering already from fewer choices of entertainment and communication that are free from the insult and effect of "angry" words and by absent modesty that causes decline for respect of the person by allowing objectification in so many cases.
