

While I agree that anyone choosing not to hear the f-word or view full frontal nudity can simply turn off the television, I strongly believe that if we see a slide in our moral standards on television there will be an increase in sexual crimes as well as an increase in pornography addictions. After all thoughts do lead to actions. I think we need to keep our standards high to protect society. I have young boys and I would be disgusted if they were to stumble across frontal nudity or were exposed to the f-word as they flip through the channels in our own home, where we keep our standards high. If these changes pass we will be turning the TV off completely in our home!
