

I find it unfortunate that parents cannot rely on the FCC to have their best interest at heart and that they would allow a lowered morality to influence our children. As a parent this would only cause more and more parents (like me and several others that I know personally) to join the growing "Zero TV" population.