

We can't let the FCC relax its standards. If this really happens and the FCC relaxes its standards, families will have no other choice, but to shut off the tv in their homes. Once again, as a country, we are bending over backwards to accomodate the desires of the minority. I still believe that the majority of people out there want clean tv.