

The government has an obligation to protect its citizens from ALL forms of indecency. Not just isolated incidents. Poison in small amounts is still poison. The right to free speech in the Constitution has nothing to do with protecting vulgarity or indecency. It has everything to do with what I am doing right now - telling the government what I think.