

No doubt any thought the FCC has in becoming more lax in regard to what once was common decency is based on viewership. However, perhaps there are many who enjoy watching T.V, but have been forced to find other forms of entertainment because they do not wish to hear what has normally been thought of as abusive language or see images and content that are degrading to both men and women.

I'm not a scientist or researcher. I could be wrong, but it is my understanding that what is shown on T.V. either mimics what is happening in society or society mimics what is shown on T.V. Little by little society is becoming noticeable less civil and decent. To my understanding the greatest strength of any person and society is virtue.

"The strength of a nation derives from the integrity of the home."

--Confucius

Is what is to be shown on T.V. promoting a civil society or taking away from it? Please keep things civil and remove, rather than encourage, abusive language and degrading content from T.V. programs and commercials. Thank you.