

In my view, the public ought to be free from objectionable "adult" programming and not having our children and grandchildren exposed to such things. Those wishing to view or consume such programming have readily available the opportunity to do so. Children are innocent and deserve the right to maintain their innocence.

They do not need to be continually exposed to adult themes.