

Television and radio are designed as mediums to entertain and educate. Allowing people to drop F bombs on the air and show frontal nudity on TV during hours when kids are awake is an affront to the values many of us try to instill in our kids and grandkids. The FCC should require a high level of decency for broadcasts. If people want nudity and colorful language, there are multiple options on cable for that. Let's knock off the nonsense and get back to a country with dependable values.
