

I oppose any changes that would allow more profanity and nudity (even in non-sexual situations) in any medium. There is less and less safe programming out there that is considered safe for children. Relaxing the language and image restrictions would send the message that this is acceptable conduct for our society. Like it or not, everyone influences society for the positive or negative. Pornography is a major, world-wide addiction and affects families and society in a very negative way. Allowing more nudity on the air would provide more access and opportunities to objectify women. We are not Europe, nor do we wish to be.

Likewise, profanity is disrespectful. No Judge would want it in their courtroom. Why would we want it in our living room? More profanity would negatively influence society and more people would deem this behavior as acceptable simply because it is on TV. It is offensive, crude, devaluing, and lazy.

Please do not relax the restrictions on language and nudity with the FCC. Ratings are not worth it. I would support a raise in the amount of fines for those who cannot seem to follow the current policies. That could also be a win-win for the American viewer and the FCC.
