

To whom it may concern,

The relaxation of television censorship to allow nudity and certain profanity should not be allowed to happen. If someone seeks that kind of entertainment, it is readily available on the internet or on premium TV channels, but it is not necessary to allow such moral decline on public airwaves. I would ask that you think about children and teenagers who may stumble across indecent programming while their parents are away or perhaps even home. We do not need to expose anyone to that indecency when they are seeking relaxation or entertainment.
