

I oppose the relaxing of decency standards as currently proposed by the FCC. Research has suggested that non-family entertainment has less appeal than old traditional shows. I now watch shows that have appeal without the explicitness now available on commercial TV. The constant eroding of TV decency standards seems to echo the same erosion of moral standards in public as evidenced by the increasing number of violent and deviant acts currently erupting around the world.