

There is no need to have any more fulgarity or nudity on our televisions, cable or regular TV. All we here is parents should monitor viewing by their children, yes that's true but the TV stations should have morals enough to know not to allow those type of things on tv that they might watch during prime time or any time. We have gotten so lax that parents dont't take responsibility but neither do the television stations which tell me morals just don't matter anymore and it is very sad. I don't want to hear times are changing because somethings don't ever need to change and morals are one of them. Thank you for allowing me to give my opinion.
