

Instead of lowering the standards for language and nudity. Consider raising them especially during the hours children are watching. As a father of two the news of even lower standards of what can be shown on TV is of great concern to myself. I do not want my children hearing language that is not appropriate for their age. As far as nudity is concerned i think it would be good for America to embrace nudity on TV as long as no sex scenes are aired during the hours children are watching. If i want to see sex scenes with nudity i will subscribe to HBO and block my kids from viewing that channel. Language should be carefully regulated or else the TV industry will run wild with it. Whats to say if it is a constant repetitive occurrence or not..... Bad idea lowering the standards and giving the TV shows more leeway, enough already is on TV we do not need more.
