

With great power comes great responsibility. It may sound funny or strange but the reality is that you guys will be held accountable one day for these kind of decisions that will affect individuals, families, communities and our country. Our thoughts lead to acts and while there is also personal accountability for what one watches and allows into their mind, you have the opportunity to keep from adding to the already wave of filth, violence and immorality that is engulfing our country and world. Isn't it obvious to you that what society thinks about is reflected in their actions, what they do. If you relax the already loose standards of what can be shown on television things will only get worse for our country. Good luck with your decision!
