

By upholding higher standards of decency, cheap humor and thrills give way to higher quality programming. Particularly in this day and age where unregulated, indecent content can be found so readily online, there's no excuse to directly degrade the moral fiber of society by sending a message that civility and decency are a thing of the past.