

Decency in TV has fallen far enough to a new low. The only reason to eliminate the current standards is because TV lacks decent programs. The programming stinks, the content stinks and the characters stink. I guess the idea is to liven things up by sinking into the cesspool of immorality. It will never work. TV is done. I for one only have cable because of the sports. The majority of channels I wouldn't watch if they paid me.

Clean up your act. Do what is right for the American people and not for money grubbers who could care less about the morality of our children.

I am against any change, in fact they need to be raised higher.
