

I am concerned about the FCC 's consideration of dropping the current decency standards that ban explicit profanity and nonsexual nudity on tv. It is very hard as it is to find decent programming for our family to watch. We have considered dropping our cable provider and not having tv at all because of the offensive content that is currently being allowed. By dropping the standards that are in place now will only make it harder for families that do not want to watch programs that are offensive with profanity and nudity. Please consider keeping the decency standards in place. Thank you for your time in reading this comment.

Michele Vandendriessche