

I strongly oppose any and all relaxations to the current broadcast decency policies. If anything, I think they should be tightened. As a nation that is focused on nurturing the next generation, I believe it will have a strong adverse impact on our nation's children to have access to female frontal nudity and strong profanity. Even when televised on non-child oriented channels, not all adults closely monitor their children's television habits. Children are simply not equipped to deal with these adult themes, even when they are "non-sexual." To developing young children, all nudity is sexual. It is also a matter of sexism and a threat to the feminist movement that female nudity be displayed on public networks. I plead with the FCC to uphold this standard, you have the charge to keep some morals into our entertainment devices!
