

I do NOT want the FCC to change its decency standards. I have 4 children and care for their well being. Changing this standard would no longer protect them from harmful content. I believe in raising my boys to treat women as human beings with respect and honor and not as sex objects. I also believe in raising my girls to have a self image that is not based on physical appearance. Showing nudity on TV reinforces that a woman can get what she wants by giving her body to whoever is willing to look. Furthermore, having explicit profanity displays a lack of honor and respect. It is degrading, filthy and I believe corrupts one's mind.

Finally, I believe that the current decency standards are not strict enough. What happened to promoting wholesome marriage, liberty from doing good and consequences from doing wrong?

Sincerely, one very concerned parent.
