

4/21/2013

To Whom it May Concern,

This note is in reference to the FCC changing the decency standards for television and radio. I am completely against this movement. I appreciate being able to watch television that isn't tainted by filth. It's already hard to find something to watch that is clean and that doesn't compromise my standards. I don't see the point in making it worse. Contrary to popular belief (according to what is already on television), most of us aren't perverts waiting to see nudity. If I want rated "R" content, I would go see a rated "R" movie. If you change things, I will get rid of television reception, as will many people I know, and that may affect the satellite providers' (DISH or Direct tv) business. I will not stop at any cost to terminate my service even though I am not rich just to get the substandard television out of my home.

I am saddened that things have come this far. Who is in charge of things and what is their agenda anyway? We don't need nudity in everyday life to be entertained. At least a lot of us don't. If you or someone you know does, rent a movie and watch in your own home, don't force the bulk of us to lower our standards.

Thank you for your consideration.

Ginger Chamberlain