

I wanted to register my position against allowing nudity (non-sexual or other), and expletives on network television. Individuals should be able to watch programming without having to leap for the remote because something indecent to them or their children unexpectedly came on to their screen. If I am watching HBO I am knowingly exposing myself to this, daytime/prime time network television used to have an assumption of decency, and I think it should be kept that way. Thank you!