

Rather than protecting media revenue I think the higher ground would be to protect children. While it is not solely media's responsibility to do so, it is their responsibility to help..."it takes a village to raise a child". Censoring does not do much, but it helps and allows parents to make informed decisions.