

I am opposed to changing the decency standards in any way, particularly by allowing full frontal nudity and profanity (the "F" word, etc.) during the "Primetime hours" of television viewing.

There is a place for those that want to hear expletives and view nude individuals, but there needs to be a place for those that don't want to see such things.

After reading the public filing, it is my opinion that every complaint should be given equal weight, no matter if an FCC individual deems it "isolated". That term is subjective and to one person the term "isolated" could mean 1 time per year or episodic season and to another it may mean 1 time per episode. If it offends the public viewing audience, who you are working for (not the government), then it should be taken as seriously as any other complaint.
