

It is unimaginable that FCC would even be considering laxing current decency standards. I do not appreciate profanity and find it the lowest form of clearly communicating a message. I would also like to be able to have the radio on in my car with my children and not be be assaulted by profanity through the speakers. I would also like to be able to watch a television broadcast and not be subjected to the sexulization of women.