

America has been demoralized. Is nothing pure and decent in the media? There is already so much soft porn and profanity in other media/"entertainment" sources, can't prime time TV keep some decency and decorum? Can't families enjoy sports events and watch TV shows without being worried about its corrupting influences of sex, nudity, and profanity affecting their children?

We shouldn't reduce standards because the FCC has a backlog. If anything that should indicated that the American public is fed up with the garbage and loose values on TV. Figure out a way to catch up.
