

There is a large population that would not be able to watch tv if you allow nudity and the "f-word." Parents are responsible for what their children watch, but the alternative is to not watch, leaving a large market alienated. The show creators may think the world wants to be liberated from morality, but the truth is, many want entertainment that doesn't make them cringe.