

There is a lot of evidence that shows when you expose people to violence or sexual material they become de-sensitized. Sexual violence is a real problem in this society and if we expose people to a routine diet of degrading women, it will become even worse.

Television should be used to raise people up, to elevate the standards for society. The more people see of this, the better they will respond. Women need to be shown in a manner that is respectful.

In the best interest of our world, nudity should be kept from the public scene and relegated to privacy.
