

I shudder to think about the damage that you would do to children and families who's only entertainment is TV, if you should relax the present standards regarding expletives, nudity, etc.

Entire families need to be able to watch programs that will build character, provide models of behavior, and entertain. Parents or other caretakers should not be afraid to leave the room lest trash is being said or shown for their families to see and hear, at any time. Let the pay channels take care to those who want it.

Thank you for your consideration.
