

Relaxing regulations to allow more vulgar and or explicit language is unacceptable. While these words may not be vulgar when used in the proper context and situation, they are not acceptable me and the younger viewers in my home. The FCC should be protecting the public and not allowing TV and Radio executives to increase nudity and broadcast inappropriate language to the general public. There are already too many TV and Radio programs that use language in prime time that sometimes embarresses me. Programs that I from time to time stop watching because of both visual and verbal content.
