

Dear FCC,

I am requesting that this ruling does not go through. Our children are exposed to enough things on television /radio that may push appropriateness for their age.

Yes, eventually, one of these days they may be exposed to sexual connotations and other such inappropriate material. However, allowing them to be children for their childhood is an essential right of passage.

One can say that its up to the parents to take care of this responsibility. We know how this works. A parent can think they have a show on that is appropriate for their children, yet then a commercial comes on for another program or just a simple commercial. Then its been exposed to their children. Have you ever gotten up to go to the bathroom on a commercial? Gotten something to eat? Taken a phone call? These things happen, so saying its only the parents responsibility is crazy. Let us work together and preserve some honorability, integrity, and not demoralize the sanctity of humankind by exposing our little ones to such behavior that is not appropriate to learn at such a young level and in a way that a parent cannot guide.

Please, consider not having 13-86 ruling go through for the sake of the children. Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter.
