

I support the changes proposed in GN Docket No. 13-86 which would change the current FCC indecency standards and would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves. Our government has better things to do with our tax money than to enforce silly taboos on the nation's communications media.

Please stop wasting our nation's tax dollars enforcing ridiculous rules about nudity and language on television and radio. The FCC should adopt the proposed changes to "indecency" standards as described in GN Docket # 13-86, as a first step toward complying fully with the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Relaxing the current policy on so-called "indecency" would definitely serve the public interest by saving precious tax dollars and relieving the communications industry of the costly burdens of carefully censoring every utterance and image that they broadcast. I fully endorse this and future efforts to take the government out of the business of enforcing religious doctrines and taboos on our country.
