

I would like to keep the current FCC policies regulating indecency and profanity in broadcasting. As the principal of a public school, I see students who are very much affected by the programs they watch, whether on TV, in the movies, or by the use of video games, software, or online. DO NOT GIVE UP an opportunity to protect our young people, and future generations by thinking that this type of regulation is not going to make a difference. The regulation of these industries sends a solid message that our country is concerned about the intellectual and emotional development of our young people.
