

I am totally opposed to relaxing the restrictions of nudity and expletives on public television. The programming allowed now on major broadcast networks has steadily decayed and devalued the American home. Those wishing to view such violence, nudity, and vulgarity should not subject those of us who prefer to view wholesome and clean entertainment. Take an honest look at America and see what has happened with our lack of morals the past fifty years. Television has been a large contributor to this decline, which has led to the collapse of family unity. The FCC has much to answer for, and as for me, I gladly take a stand for affirming that God allowed our country to become the envy of the world, and yet our own lust for filth is rapidly destroying the country we all love. Please turn the ship around and do not allow even more filth to penetrate the air waves.
