

Please do not lower the standards of public television. My family does not watch television shows that do not hold up to our standards of decency, morality, loyalty, integrity and respect for others. Just because you call it entertainment does not make it appropriate to show to mass audiences. Children do not need to be exposed to such language and sexual references. How can we expect our children and our coworkers to respect one another if television is showing them just the opposite? How can we expect men to respect women if they are degraded and exposed so publically and so frequently? Where is your pride in American values? Please reconsider this proposition, make television better not worse! Thank you.
