

The FCC must continue prohibiting nudity and profanity during hours that children may be watching television. There is no reason to change existing guidelines. Programs and commercials on TV today already continually cross a healthy boundary and have contributed to the slow erosion of our social mores and the oversexualization of our children. Continue protecting our children - particularly when many families park their children in front of a TV and have no idea what might be on.