

My family and I absolutely OPPOSE ANY loosening of broadcast decency standards - notwithstanding the ones proposed in Proceeding 13-86. As a husband, father, and grandfather I do not believe there is any value or constructive necessity in reducing broadcast standards.

What is currently broadcast across US airwaves and through our local TV stations is already damaging enough to personal and family values. Allowing even more nudity and profanity is neither needed nor wanted, as we should be actively trying to clean up our act. Anything less than improving our standards should be seen as an affront to good, civilized humanity. We as a civilization are supposed to be improving ourselves - NOT going backwards and debasing ourselves with ever increasing immoral and unethical behaviors...NOT even in the name of "entertainment."

We implore the FCC to use its authority to prohibit ANY expanded indecency during prime time when families and children may be watching. Do a review, if you must, of recent "value inspired" shows, movies, and documentaries, and you'll find that ratings can be just as high - if not higher - than shows with vulgar language and scantily clad women (or men) parading around their bodies like show animals.
