

It is beyond belief that the current allowances for sexual content, innuendos and language are allowed on television. I do not see how it is in the FCC's authority to override parental decisions on what their children are exposed too by allowing even more of this content in such a ubiquitous medium as television.

I strongly object to allowing more nudity and bad language. I want more restrictive regulations on current programming.

Sincerely,

Rick Clark